

BARNES'S SPEECH.

AUGUSTA'S ORATOR ENLIGHTENS THE PEOPLE OF ATLANTA.

A Speech in Which the Acts of the Republican Party are Reviewed from its Organization and Severely Criticized. He Lays Down Democracy and Independence.

DeGree's opera house was densely crowded last night with one of the most select and appreciative audiences that has assembled there in during the present season, the occasion being the address to the citizens of Atlanta by the Hon. George T. Barnes, of Augusta. Upon the stage a dozen of Atlanta professional gentlemen were seated, and during the entire address the most profound respect was paid the speaker, whose many good sayings were loudly and frequently applauded.

Mr. Porter King, of this city, in a beautiful and impressive manner addressed the audience, introducing Mr. Barnes. In his speech, which was replete with terse sayings, he paid many compliments to the distinguished gentleman, and spoke of his devotion to the democratic party, and referred to his defeat before the late democratic convention for congress at large, and cited his manner of accepting defeat and of rallying to the support of the nominee as a criterion for all statesmen.

Mr. Barnes arose amid a storm of applause and began his address by returning thanks to the audience and to the gentleman who so beautifully introduced him. He said that his address was in response to the invitation of the Stephens club of this city, and he was aware of the fact that he was now standing upon a spot hallowed by the presence of a few days ago of the great standard bearer of the democratic party. He expressed himself as steadfast in his democratic principles, and said that he did not come to discuss the convicts and taxation questions, but that he came to discuss the man who said that he would give free schools to all and in the same breath promised to reduce and do away with the taxation which gave existence to these schools. The paramount question of the day he declared to be the preservation of the national democratic party, and stated that the present contest was but the preamble to the great battle of 1884. He declared that parties must always exist where a free government exists, and that the history of the world, and that parties in England have existed only since the settlement of the crown. "With us," he said, "there has been two parties since the foundation of our government. We have men who talk about independence, but we can have nothing of that kind in our government, as no man can be isolated from his party, as the word independent indicates. Candidates within themselves are nothing, but are the exponent of the party."

They claim to represent. When we look back we see that parties have sprung out of the frame of the government. He then referred to the element in the constitutional convention who were in favor of a strong government. The character of a government must be governed alone by the interpretation of the constitution. He then spoke of the beginning of political parties in this country during the administration of the elder Adams, and spoke of the alien and sedition laws. The speaker then referred to the execution of these laws and the way in which it was denounced. He then referred to the rights of the states as it was agitated under Jefferson's administration and of the formation of the republican party in 1856, in the first convention of which party it was declared that the rights of the states should be preserved, and referred to their action at the time of the John Brown raid, in which they denounced the armed invasion of a state.

At the close of the war, when the southern people returned home, broken in spirits, one of the leading generals of the federal army recognized the principles of his party in his agreement with General Johnson at his surrender. He then spoke of the change that occurred in the principles of the party when representatives of the south sought admittance to congress after the war. He spoke of and denounced the reconstruction laws of congress, and referred to converting free states into five military divisions, the removal of governors; the disbanding of legislatures and the disregarding of the judiciary. The speaker said: "I said not tell you what Georgia suffered during the radical administration, for you all know; but I will tell you our sister state, South Carolina. Look how her wealth diminished and her taxation increased. Look at Mississippi, where the rate of taxation was increased 100 per cent. from 1861 to 1882, and she resumed her own state government. One month ago it looked like our old state was going the same way, but thank God the democratic party has been aroused and today the republicans are in the hands of democracy will carry off the victory. The speaker then referred to the corruption in the republican party, and cited the whisky ring, Indian frauds and the outrages in Louisiana at the close of the war. He then graphically described the manner in which the Louisiana legislature was disbanded; how member after member was led from the hall between files of soldiers. He said this work did not compare with the overthrow of ancient or modern history. The speaker declared Grant the great usurper of the rights of the people, and said that he held SUPREMACY UNTIL 1876, when Sam Tilden came to the front as the leader of the democratic party. He then spoke of Tilden's election to the presidency, and of the fraud which was used to seat his defeated adversary, Rutherford B. Hayes. Hayes's administration was carefully reviewed by the speaker, and every corrupt act denounced in the strongest language. His review of Hayes's administration and brought Arthur's up to date. He then referred to the cases now pending in the United States courts in this city and declared that this alone showed that there was an evident desire on the part of the republican party to take every thing out of the hands of the state laws and place them in the United States courts. In his cursory review he showed that the leaders of the republican party intended by any and all means to continue themselves in power.

The speaker referred to the reunion of the democratic party in New York, the split of the republican party in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio and said that the republicans had to make good their loss in the north by Mahoneism in Virginia, liberalism in North Carolina, and independence in Georgia. He declared that it now came an issue between the two parties, but the races in the south, and said that the republican party was negro supremacy in the south, and asserted that by disintegrating the democratic party they hoped again to secure control. He regretted that he did not have the eloquence of the immortal Hill to address the people from the lectern which seemed to pervade the state, and invoked the women to come to the rescue, and declared there was but one remedy and that was organization with a view to co-operation with the national democracy in the coming contest. He begged every one present to unite with the democratic party and partake of the victory which is sure to belong to the democrats. The speaker declared that Stephens was endeared to him by his frequent quotations from Jefferson, about which some papers in the state are so harping just now, and paid the nominee a high compliment for his great knowledge of Jeffersonian principles. He declared that everybody had an interest in this issue, and advised them to yield to the will of the majority and make the fight. His speech closed amid loud cheers and added many votes to the democratic party.

In conclusion of Mr. Barnes's address, Judge Lester was called for by the house and in a brief speech poured hot shot in the Garretts ranks. He asserted that Garretts would be beaten so badly that the day after the election he would go before a justice of the peace, if he could find one, and swear he had never been a candidate.

PAUL STROBACH'S WORK UNDONE

The Alabama Officials Whose Removal He Procured

WASHINGTON, September 28.—A tall, stooping form, clad in a linen duster, has long been a familiar sight in and around the white house. The face is bearded, and spectacles cover the bright eyes. The face and figure are those of Paul Strobach, a well-educated German, who is known as one of the most persistent of the chronic office seekers who infest this city. Strobach went south in the "carpe bag" times, and represented Alabama in congress. He has been out of a job, and has been very anxious to get one. He was active in urging his claims during Garfield's brief term of office, and hunted the white house all through the sickness. Doubtless during Garfield's life he was a good hand breed, but latterly he has been a stalwart, and as such has antagonized the present marshal of Alabama, Mr. Osborn, and two collectors of internal revenue, Morgan, of Mobile, and Karpier, of Montgomery. These men, he represented to President Arthur, had been friends of Secretary Sherman, and were now opposed to the administration. Strobach finally got the president to suspend the three officers named, and to appoint himself as marshal, with two of his friends as collectors of internal revenue. No sooner was this done than a storm of protests and remonstrances burst upon the president. He soon learned that he had been misinformed as to the sentiment in Alabama. Assurances came from that state that the suspended officials were capable and faithful men, and that their removal would be disastrous to the public interests and to the party. So urgent and general have been these remonstrances that the president telegraphed here to-day that the members should be for the present at least, continued in office. Mr. Strobach's weary journey to the white house have evidently not yet won him a snug place.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

Opening of the Campaign of the National Woman's Suffrage Association.

OMAHA, Neb., September 28.—In order to open a campaign the National Woman's Suffrage association holds its convention in Nebraska instead of at the usual time, the month of May—and Omaha is chosen, Nebraska is to submit the woman-suffrage amendment in November to its electors. The opening of the convention in Boyd's opera house to-night was attended by a packed house. Hon. A. J. Poppleton, who has been a prominent advocate of equality for women in education, personal and property rights and wages, but avows himself not a woman-suffragist, and is a leading democrat of the state, delivered the opening address. Miss Susan B. Anthony, in replying, spoke of the progress of the movement, and read a letter from Elizabeth Cady Stanton, the founder of the movement, to the convention. Several speeches followed, including a rhapsody on the home given by Mrs. Evaline Mason, of Milwaukee, and a lively and sarcastic review of the objections to the woman-suffrage by Mrs. May Wright Sewall, of Indiana. Next week a joint debate on the woman-suffrage question is announced between Susan B. Anthony and Edward Ross, of the Bee, to take place in the opera house.

OMAHA, Neb., September 28.—The National woman's suffrage convention met this evening at Boyd's opera house. An address of welcome was made in behalf of the citizens by the Hon. A. J. Poppleton, and Miss Susan B. Anthony made a response and Miss Evaline Mason, of Milwaukee, delivered an address—subject: "Queens of the Home." Mrs. May Wright Sewall spoke next, on "The Old States in the Military Division of the Nation." The convention opened a grand success.

He will have to pass through Dr. Murray's cordon to reach there. A small mail reached here last evening. Matamoras celebrated this evening the termination of the yellow fever by a grand display of fireworks. There were two deaths there to-day from the disease, but no new cases are reported. Weather is cool and pleasant.

BOUGHT OFF.

End of the Litigation in That Famous Game of Poker.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., September 28.—A settlement, satisfactory to all concerned, has been made in the famous poker cases between Francis J. Weed, the victim, and Dr. Monte-ville, M. Hedges and William M. Scott. In pursuance of the agreement, District Attorney Anthony to-day moved for and obtained from Judge Cowen, in the county court, an order to nolle prosequi the indictments against Hedges and Scott. Hedges says the overtures for settlement came from Weed. Scott was at first opposed to it, but being urged finally agreed. It is in Chicago in a very low physical condition. It is said that because of this the other side was anxious to compromise, and it is understood that Weed has accepted about $20,000 in full settlement of the matter. This amount comes from Hedges, Scott, and the friends of the latter. By the articles of agreement not only the criminal proceedings against Hedges and Scott are to be discontinued, but the civil suits against them are also stopped. Weed's first cash payment was $25,000 instead of $20,000, as has been stated. He paid $50,000 on the first note, and $35,000 on the second, making in all $110,000. He has come out of the affair a loser, to the amount of about $80,000, having got back, besides the cash above mentioned, the 10 per cent condition. ATLANTA, GA. March 17, 1882.
Messrs J. P. Stevens & Co.; GENTLEMEN: In accordance with your request I have given the watch, No 120, which you made, the most severe test that a watch can get in the rough usage of railroad service. The results that this time piece have yielded have been most remarkable. I set it by standard time and kept it three weeks without changing it any way. At the end of this time I found that the watch had varied only four seconds. Considering the rough treatment which the watch received, this is the most accurate result I have ever seen.
Yours truly,
T. C. McLENDON,
Conductor C R of Ga.

We were then shown the invoice and saw that 50 per cent was deducted off the bill. THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.
At the expiration of Alderman Beermann's term of office, the south side of the railroad will have no immediate representative in the aldermanic board, as there are two of the ones holding over from the north side. Justice demands that Alderman Beermann's successor should be from the south side of Atlanta and they present the name of that old, tried public spirited citizen, Major John H. Nevelin, as a suitable man to fill the place and one that will be supported by the whole people of Atlanta.
